The Statement of Reasons for Studying and the Letter of Financial Support are used to determine the applicant and financial supporter's willingness to study abroad.

Interviews are conducted in person on-site when possible. If the interview cannot be held in person, an online interview will be arranged.

The entrance examination will focus on motivation and planning, Japanese language ability, and financial capability.

Motivation and Planning

As part of the screening process, we ask all applicants why they chose to study in Japan, why they chose Toyo Language School, and what they plan to do after studying Japanese.

Japanese Language Ability

Previous Japanese Language Proficiency Test scores and Japanese study history will be used to determine a student's motivation to study in Japan.

Financial Capability

At this step, the applicant's ability to study without relying on a part-time job will be verified.

We also confirm that there are no issues with the individual's communication skills beyond their Japanese language proficiency, and that they are in good health to lead a student life in Japan without difficulty.
